Sarah Palin's Gaining New Facebook Supporters and Bobblehead Collectors

Interest in Alaska's former Governor extends beyond social networking to collectors of bobbleheads

Cumming, GA—September 14, 2009 – As Sarah Palin amasses a base of almost 800,000 Facebook fans, Royal Bobbles, LLC of Cumming GA announces the release of a limited-edition Sarah Palin bobblehead doll.

Away from the constraints of her roles as the former Governor of Alaska and John McCain's 2008 vice presidential running mate, Sarah Palin is expanding her political presence on social networking sites like Facebook and Twitter.

And though she has limited public appearances since resigning from the Governor's office in July, her fans and pundits can evoke her celebrated appearance at the 2008 Republican National Convention with Royal Bobbles remarkable likeness of Sarah Palin clad in the Valentino jacket and skirt she wore on the night she burst upon the national political scene.

"Political bobbleheads are very popular among collectors" said Warren Royal, owner of Royal Bobbles. "and we have received a large number of requests for a product commemorating her remarkable ascension to the national political scene. We think her amazing connection with her supporters will ensure that this limited-edition model will sell out very quickly."

The Sarah Palin bobblehead—securely packed in a colorful collector's box—is in stock at Royal Bobbles and available for shipping to eager "political novelty" collectors until the limited-edition collectible (2000 figures) is permanently retired.
